Foreword

This document is produced in the context of the CAPQI project (Ref.: 2016-1-ES01-KA203-025562) and aims at presenting to all CAPQI partners the process and the methodology used for the creation of an online rating platform providing feedbacks on the quality of internships.

Introduction

The IO2 consist on an online rating platform providing feedbacks on the quality of internships.

Online ratings of internships can significantly increase the transparency on the internship conditions within European companies and thus act as a trigger for companies to improve young people working conditions. Ratings help students make better career decision and incentivize employers to invest in quality internships.

In 2014, InternsGoPro developed a first prototype (<https://ratings.internsgopro.com/en/>) containing a rating form (allowing input by interns) and an overview of the rated companies. Through this prototype, InternsGoPro managed to collect 400 ratings coming from more than 12 European countries; proving that the concept could work and potentially reach bigger impact with an upgrade.

Base on the results of the IO1 and this prototype, project partners created an impactful and scalable rating platform in IO2. The objective being to make the rating form useful for as many stakeholders as possible and to significantly increase the percentage of users reviewing their internships.

To reach this objective, project partners undertook different activities:

- Revise questionnaire items: review the questions, improve formulations (based on IO1 and feedback from experts);
- Improve the user experience: design a visually appealing questionnaire, easy to understand and quick to answer;
- Testing phase - Student involvement: test the questionnaire among users, receive feedback and integrate it in the rating design;
- Translation of the rating form to ensure the tool can be disseminated European-wide and reach impact more easily

1. Review of the questionnaire

Project partners reviewed the questionnaire developed in IO1 with 3 experts from different fields in order to boost the project impact. The 3 perspectives chosen were:

- a. Human Resource expertise
- b. Communication expertise
- c. User Experience expertise

A. InternsGoPro worked with a HR expert having a decade of experience as a Human Resource Director in a large corporation. The objective was to make the rating form useful also for companies. In IO1, the questions were drafted by project partners who come from a NGO and university background. In IO2, project partners thought it would be beneficial for the CAPQI impact to include more the employer perspective. Hence, project partners made sure that the questions and their formulation would allow to draw the best possible inferences on the quality of the experience; both from a student's and employer's perspective.

The main outputs were:

- the addition of a question on the mission of the hosting company. Employers are interested to have more data on the motivation of their interns and showcase the importance of their mission;
- addition of a question on the working hours. Working hours are an important aspect determining the quality of the working experience.

B. Another perspective was the communication perspective. We added or transformed certain questions from IO1 in order for project partners to develop powerful message and guarantee a better dissemination and visibility of the rating form.

Apart from the reformulation, the main outputs were:

- “Would you like to stay in this company? highlight pros and cons” (open comment question). This question should generate sentences (all other questions are numerical or yes/no) and the produced content could be easily re-used to make powerful personalised messages during communication campaigns;
- “Would you recommend this work experience?” (simple tick box). Future users of the CAPQI tools checking on the quality of a given employer will directly see (before reading all the ratings) if many other people have had a good experience with this employer.

C. Finally, project partners worked extensively with UX experts. More details will be given in the section 2. This section here addresses the change project partners brought to the formulation of the questions to ensure an easy understanding, foster intuitiveness and reduce the time spent to fill questionnaire. The major changes were:

- separate the questions into 3 big groups to help in the understanding;
- Make the question into a yes/no format to make them more intuitive.

The final result is as follows:

2. Improved user experience

“User Experience (UX) refers to a person's emotions and attitudes about using a particular product, system or service. It includes the practical, experiential, affective, meaningful and valuable aspects of human–computer interaction and product ownership. Additionally, it includes a person’s perceptions of system aspects such as utility, ease of use and efficiency”<sup>1</sup>. A good user experience is thus essential to ensure a good dissemination and usage of the review form and consequently ensure the CAPQI impact.

The review form developed by InternsGoPro was first user experience the CAPQI depended on (it can be found here: <https://ratings.internsgopro.com/en/> or in the screenshots in the annex section of this document).

Project partners decided to significantly rework the user experience of the review form. The goal being to increase the ratio of people rating. To do so, project partners devised a thorough process: benchmarking of best-practices in review forms, user interviews based on the first version of the review form and finally wireframe development and design.

The analysis of best-practices allowed project partners to improve mainly on the following elements: information flow, navigation of review form, anonymity statement, and presentation of questions.

InternsGoPro conducted a total 8 user interviews at different stages of the process. These interviews allowed project partners to understand the weaknesses of the review form available so far. This allowed for instance to find out which questions were misleading, which formulations made people hesitant to answer and make some estimations on how to improve the filling-out speed for the users.

Many iterations have been necessary to arrive to the final result. A first notable iteration result was this one: <https://secret-eyrie-62057.herokuapp.com/ratings/new>

Project partners collected feedback for the first version, and reworked it. This led to the following design of the rating form which is now the final result to continue towards IO3: <http://invis.io/3BBUA2B9T>

3. Testing phase – Usability Testing among students

In April 2017, InternsGoPro conducted two sets of usability testing with 8 young graduates. The objective was to validate (or invalidate) certain assumptions on the user experience to make sure the online rating form is easy to use and can reach maximum impact. Based on these feedbacks the CAPQI final rating form was produced (annex 3).

The two versions tested were: annex 2 (<https://secret-eyrie-62057.herokuapp.com/ratings/new>) and 3 (<http://invis.io/3BBUA2B9T>).

3.1. Components to be validated

We focus the usability testing on the following elements:

- Progress bar functionality
- Ordering of steps
- Comprehension of the welcome screen
- Sharing to social media after finishing
- Question wording
- Willingness to open-ended questions
- Reaction to star rating and thumbs up/down icons

3.2. Participants' profile

InternsGoPro interviewed a total of 8 participants and deemed useful to know what was their relationship with internships and see if it would influence their behaviour in front of the rating form. The 8 participants had the following profile:

- Saleh – Senior Engineer – Bad internship, bitter about the general state of internships
- Hanaa – Graduate – Internship was ok
- Lamia – Graduate – had a good internship
- Jihan – Freshly graduated – had an excellent internship
- Ahmad – Freshly graduated – Internship was ok
- Aya – Freshly graduated – had an excellent internship
- Dalia – Graduate – Internship was ok
- Nadine – Freshly graduated – very bad internship

3.3. Methodology

The methodology used during these usability testing was composed of 7 steps:

- Bring users to a comfortable setting and brief them about what this meeting is about
- Brief users about the CAPQI project in general
- Ask them to talk about their most recent internship
- Ask them to rate this internship
- Record time taken by the users to complete the rating form
- Observe users when interacting with the different components to be validated
- After completing the form, ask the users about their impression

3.4. Observations

Prototype V1 (annex 2)

Saleh 7:21	Didn't notice it	ok	Skimmed and click on start here	Not active on SM	ok	yes	ok	ok
Lamia 5:19	Didn't notice it	ok	Didn't understand it	Yes	ok	no	ok	ok
Hanna 5:29	ok	ok	Clicked in "anonymous" icon	No	ok	yes	ok	ok
Jihan 4:14	ok	ok	Didn't understand it	No	ok	no	ok	ok

Prototype V2 (annex 3)

	Progress bar	Steps order	Welcome screen	Social media sharing	Questions wording	Answered open-ended question	Star rating interaction	Thumbs interaction
Ahmad 4:04	ok	ok	ok	yes	ok	no	ok	ok
Aya 3:44	ok	ok	Didn't understand it	no	ok	no	ok	ok
Dalia 4:06	ok	ok	Took a while until she found "start here"	no	ok	yes	ok	ok
Nadine 4:36	ok	ok	ok	no	ok	no	ok	ok

4. Translation

Project partners are planning to deploy the rating form in English, French, German, Portuguese and Spanish. So far, project partners developed the English and French version.

See annex for the French version

5. Conclusion and Remarks

Project partners undertook many iterations of the rating form, calling also to external experts. This is done with a view to being able to create a tool as inclusive and useful as possible for any stakeholder (universities, students, employers, decision makers, etc.).

Project partners believe that the new user experience will also foster the conversation of users visiting the website (rating form) towards users completing the rating form. Real-size tests will be performed in IO3.

The rating form will be deployed on several websites (such as <http://www.capqi-project.eu/>, <http://www.internsgopro.com/en/home/>, etc.) and extra iterations in IO3 are planned to improve the user experience.

In the IO3, project partners but also partners outside the consortium will be able to install the rating form on their website through a widget. By performing interviews in IO2, project partners realised that external partners should have some flexibility with the questions of the rating forms to ensure that the tool is useful for them. In IO3, external partners will therefore be able to add extra questions to the rating form, and personalise it. Nevertheless, they won't be able to change the set of core questions (defined here in IO2). Partners will get access to a password-protected area of the CAPQI website, currently on <http://internsgopro.staging.rails.robustastudio.com/partners/login>. Here, project partners will be able to monitor and validate the extra questions from the external partners.
